

Max the hedgehog was startled by all the human legs at the crossing.

He ran away from the road and found himself at the park his dad had told him about.

Max was wandering around the park and then realised he was lost.

He met a friendly hedgehog who helped give Max instructions to find his way home.

Max got another bump on the head from a human in a telephone box.